

What is Past is Prologue

At critical decision points in our lives, wisdom dictates that we can't separate our past, present and future in our choices. We must always be aware of all the three components to have an accurate sense of direction for our lives, so we can make good decisions, not just for where we are right now but where we anticipate life's journey may lead us.

If you're a young boy who goes into debt to purchase a fancy computer, you're living only in the present. If you could feel the future and know the pleasure of a growing savings account or other steady growth investment, you'd make different choices. If you knew anything of past cycles of tough economic times, you'd make wiser decisions.

Men who abandon wives and families in exchange for a woman the age of their daughters; city and state government leaders that sell off parking meters, bridges, land, and toll roads to solve this year's financial crisis; career women who continually defer marriage..., none of these people possess that sense of time so vital for successful living.

Betraying the memory of long-dead parents or grandparents is prohibited by our Creator, same thing as doing away with the unborn, or letting them live but saddling them with a crushing debt burden.

It is all too easy to live in and for the present. It is far harder and less intuitive to integrate the past and the future into the decisions of the present.

Scientific development depends upon knowing what happened yesterday and where we are attempting to reach tomorrow. Successful living depends on exactly the same knowledge.

Sometimes, along the adventure of life, you may have to make your present harder because of a concern for the past or the future. That's the hallmark of a generational thinker, people whose thinking transcends time and space.

I want my future generations to know that I had to make some serious sacrifices for uncomfortable decisions, for their sake. It will be worth it even if there is ONLY one grateful soul, after I had long completed this leg of my journey on earth.

This is one reasons why you must document your family history and teach it throughout your generations... story about what you are going through right now, the harsh reality and condition of the world and how you overcame them; what did your grandparents went through... These stories will make your family stronger and stronger through generations to come.

Maybe it was a decision of just that one person to plant that tree years ago so I could enjoy the shade today or so I didn't have to start life from nothing...

What tree are you planting today?

This eBook Unveils the Human Manufacturer's Mind (God, the Creator's Mind), the Blueprint for living here on earth, with Purpose and Vision. An invaluable eBook that you will refer to again & again!

God's wisdom ... His Principles and Laws (Rules, Tips, Tools, Techniques, guidelines) are for mankind not only for Kingdom Citizens or religious people. They will teach, amongst other things, about how to make money and invest for the future; build a good marriage and raising offsprings into fantastic adults; build a thriving society with longterm mindset... When you understand a thing, it will work for you.

Here is the overview of the framework for living on earth, according to the Mind of our Creator:

1. The Purpose of God for earth – what's in the Mind of God for creating man species ONLY in two models: Male Man (husband) and Female Man (wife).
2. Why there're exactly two distinctive categories of relationship ordained by God – relationships between men and women, and relationships for financial and economic interactions between human beings. Marriage is a relationship that distinguishes humans from animals.

3. Building character strength - spiritual backbone.
4. The two singles that should marry – marriage, building thriving family and raising children that will become model citizens.
5. Starting and growing business with momentum – unlimited financial and economic human interactions to earn money and grow wealth.
6. The four pillars of digital investment – to exponentially multiply, grow and protect your wealth in a steady and consistent fashion.
7. The 7 levels of perception – anticipating challenges ahead and providing solutions today.
8. Protecting your legacy for generations unborn.

In the ever-changing world, ALWAYS focus and depend on things that never change, the Principles and Laws of God. There lies your joy, success, fulfilment and prosperity without sorrows.

Adjusting your money thinking mindset

The five books of Moses brought down from God on Mount Sinai contain far more rules and regulations about financial transactions than they do about any other category of moral teaching.

About 60% of both the Old and New Testament is about money and Biblical economy.

What is more, Bible teaching through the lens of ancient wisdom illustrates how financial transactions allow strangers to please one another... AND this pleases God!

The Yosef (Joseph) Generations Inner Circle MasterMind For Conquers reveals it all, and much more.
